Inside Track at SeaWorld	Here are some Top Tips from SeaWorld Insiders: If you love animals... Make time for feeding times: Meal time is the best time to meet some playful Atlantic Bottlenose dolphins, sea lions, and sting rays, who you can even feed by hand—but only at designated times throughout the day. Stop by in the morning to check the day's schedule, then give yourself some extra time to get a great spot right at the water's edge. See what goes on behind the scenes: SeaWorld Orlando's Behind-the-Scenes tour times aren't listed on the park map, so they're easy to miss out on once you're here. An insider's tip? Book online ahead of time, or stop by the tour desk just inside the front gate. If you're bringing young kids... Bring a disposable waterproof camera: There's wet, and there's Shamu wet. If you're in the Soak Zone at Shamu stadium, you'll have a lot more fun watching kids' reactions if you don't have to watch out for an expensive camera. A little tip for parents? Pack a poncho—or pick one up at the gift shop. It's a great way to keep yourself and a towel or two dry, and still get in on the fun. Feed their imagination: Look for interactive work stations and computers located throughout the park that give kids a fun way to learn about the animals they meet. Kids can test their lung power against a walrus in Wild Arctic or see how a manatee grinds its food at Manatee Rescue.

	Head to Shamu’s Happy Harbor: A great place for kids to burn off a little energy, plus plenty of shady spots for parents. Ride the family-friendly Shamu Express—a great first coaster—and imaginative rides like Jazzie Jellies and Swishy Fishies that bring out the kid in everyone. Make an autograph book: put together an autograph book with kids ahead of time, then catch the Shamu & Crew characters from 9 a.m. to noon near the front gate. Catch the show before the show: Take your seat for the Clyde and Seamore show at least 30 minutes ahead of time. Late-comers miss out on their zany pre-show antics. Once you’ve worked up an appetite... Beat the crowd: Plan to have lunch during show performances and you’ll get ahead of the crowd. Plan to already have a reservation at Shark’s Underwater Grill: This popular restaurant only takes priority seating requests in person—starting at 10:00 a.m. Stop by early to guarantee your seat. A few last tips from those in the know... Choose your seats wisely: You will get drenched if you sit in the front seat of Journey to Atlantis—and I mean drenched! Been there, done that! Beat the heat: Temperatures can get quite high—especially in the middle of the day. Plan to take in these "cool places" when the thermometer rises: Wild Arctic, Penguin Encounter and Nautilus Theater. Remember the kid in you: Don’t be surprised if you find yourself choked up in the presence of Shamu. Or your arms covered with goose bumps in 30° weather as your hand touches a dolphin. There’s an incredible connection between humans and animals. Take a few deep breaths and drink that in when you feel that move through you, and you’ll carry that feeling home with you.

Antarctica at SeaWorld

The big news from the SeaWorld Park is that next Spring 2013 "Antarctica – Empire of the Penguins" is opening. This will be a fabulous experience allowing visitors to see the world through the eyes of penguin.

Manta at SeaWorld

The only flying roller coaster of its kind in the world. A seamless blend of up close animal encounters with a head-first, face-down thrill ride. It's an adventure only SeaWorld could create.

From the start, Manta provides a glimpse into the incredible underwater worlds of tropical fish and rays - many seldom seen. Floor-to-ceiling aquariums showcase rare leafy sea dragons and thousands of schooling fish. Kids get a unique 360-degree underwater view by climbing into a pop-up aquarium. A massive Pacific octopus slinks back and forth between habitats through an underwater tube. Three hundred rays - their group known as a "fever" - swim/fly past you and even overhead. You'll be immersed and surrounded by thousands of mysterious creatures.

Turning a corner, you'll peer through a waterfall then feel the punch of air as something huge zooms by, just inches away. It's a giant manta ray. On steel rails. A manta ray thrill-ride speeding, flying, soaring, gliding and spinning at highway speeds. And secured to the manta's belly are 32 riders, each one lying prone and face down, going for a ride on the biggest and grandest ray of all.

SeaWorld ride and animal experts designed Manta to have thrills for the whole family, at every age level. For guests too young to ride roller coasters — or those who like their adventures a little less extreme — the Manta experience includes incredible views into 10 stunning and all-new aquariums, which are home to 100 species of fish, hundreds of rays and other sea life, more than 3,000 creatures in all. Never before has SeaWorld had such a diverse display of ocean animals. And never before have non-riders been so much a part of a thrill ride's experience. Those who take their excitement flying head first at 56 mph crown Manta as one of the world's top coasters. A track-twisting pretzel loop, in-line spins, a waterfall close call and a wing dip just inches from the water add up to a flying roller coaster ride never before seen, let alone experienced. There are only a handful of "flying coasters" in the world.

Climbing into what look like traditional seats and harnesses, riders soon notice what makes this kind of coaster so special: the entire seating assembly rotates forward, positioning riders horizontally, or face down in a prone position. It's like flying. Or even better, it's like riding on the belly of a massive 12-foot-wide manta ray as it glides and twists and soars above the ocean. For thrill ride fans, Manta is sure to be the final notch on their coaster belt. For lovers of up close encounters with the mysteries of the sea, it's what they love about SeaWorld.

ATTRACTIONS
Animal Attractions at SeaWorld	“Key West at SeaWorld” spans five acres and celebrates the legendary mystique and animals of the Florida Keys while it immerses guests in the quirky, carefree ambiance of America's southernmost city. Guests may feed and touch dolphins in a tropical lagoon with rolling waves, a sandy beach, underwater viewing and naturalistic coral reef -- as well as feed stingrays and see endangered sea turtles up-close. “Manatee Rescue” submerges guests in the beautiful underwater world of the endangered Florida manatee. All of the manatees in this habitat have been rescued by SeaWorld’s animal rescue team, and those who become healthy enough will be returned to their natural habitat. Six thousand pounds of snow fall daily inside the naturalistic habitat, which is reminiscent of the Antarctic’s rocky cliffs and frigid waters.
